

Copyright License Agreement

By submitting an abstract, ePoster, or video (the "Submission") for consideration at the Anterior Hip Foundation (AHF) 2026 Annual Event, you agree to the following terms.

1. Grant of License

If your Submission is accepted, you grant AHF a non-exclusive, royalty-free, worldwide, perpetual license to:

- Publish, reproduce, distribute, and display the Submission as part of AHF 2026 and future AHF educational activities.
- Include the Submission in event programs, proceedings, online platforms, ePosters, videos, recordings, and other compilations or collections created and owned by AHF.
- Make the Submission available on the AHF website, the AHF event app, social media channels, and other digital or physical formats.
- Edit the Submission as needed for formatting, length, or clarity, without altering its meaning.

2. Presentation Materials and Recordings

If your Submission is selected for presentation, you also grant AHF permission to:

- Record your presentation (audio and video)
- Use your slides, ePoster, or video together with the recording
- Publish, stream, archive, and share these materials in any current or future media format

3. Ownership

You and any co-authors retain the copyright to your individual Submission. AHF will own the copyright in any collective works or compilations that include your Submission.

4. Your Warranties and Responsibilities

By submitting, you confirm that:

- You are the lead or corresponding author or presenter, and are authorized to enter into this agreement on behalf of all authors and contributors.
- You (and your co-authors, if any) own the rights to the Submission, or you have obtained all permissions needed to grant this license to AHF.
- The Submission and presentation do not infringe any copyrights, privacy rights, or other third-party rights.
- If your Submission includes copyrighted or proprietary material owned by others, you have secured written permission and provided required attribution.
- You will not receive compensation from AHF for publication, distribution, or use of the Submission or presentation materials.

5. Public Availability

Accepted Submissions will be made publicly available at the start of the AHF 2026 Annual Event and may be referenced or shared by AHF, media representatives, attendees, and third parties.
